

LNG Croatia announced on its website a public call for investment in the construction of an LNG terminal for liquefied natural gas on the Krk , the estimated value of 600 million euros. They expect two types of investors, strategic and financial. For strategic partner companies can compete companies in the LNG business, and the contest is open until 30 October. Invitation to financial investors LNG Croatia will keep open until December 15, and the choice of partners should be released one month after the bid opening. Investors can call first to express interest, and data room will be officially opened on 1 September.

The application for registration, the interested investors can download on the official website of the company.

LNG terminal on Krk island will include the construction and operation of the infrastructure required for receiving, storing, streaming and gasification of liquefied natural gas (LNG). The project aims to ensure energy needs and increase in security of supply through a new supply route for natural gas for the countries of Central and Eastern Europe. , transmits Serbia-energy.eu