

This year is decisive for the survival of renewable energy facilities, whereas over 40% of the producers are close to bankruptcy, said Sebastian Enache, manager of development at Monsson Group.

“This year is a year of force majeure. Over 40% of renewable energy producers are in default this year, ” he says, although the impact of the support scheme in the bill final consumer household type is 4 lei per month, but the benefits are maximized.

“The authorities recognize the problem, but nobody reacts with anything. It is about 7 billion euros, more than 25,000 jobs, and the installed capacity is higher than that of nuclear energy. Everyone asks us if we are better and we can help, but there is an interest.

Everyone relies that those big companies that have invested to further support projects, but how can you advocate minus a year or two? ” Said representative of Monsson, transmits Serbia-energy.eu
