

Last week, Rompetrol Gas has suspended its bottling and marketing activities at its liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) bottling station in Navodari, after the Ministry of finance has revoked the company's tax warehouse permit.

The statement from the company said that it is surprised with the decision of the Ministry of Finance to reject the request to renew the permit for its tax warehouse located on the Petromidia platform, which also led to the revoking of the current tax warehouse permit. Petroleum Gas is a part of KMG International and was bottling LPG mainly for households use. The company has suspended its activities at this production point since customs authorities have sealed the production installations.

The company announced that it will try to take all legal measures in order to protect its business and its employees. The Ministry's permit commission took this decision on 21 April and 19 May, while the company was informed on 25 May, transmits Serbia-energy.eu
