

Governments of Serbia and Kosovo should discuss about energy resources during negotiations in Brussels, said Serbian energy Minister Zorana Mihajlovic.

According to her words, Serbian delegation has already been to Brussels two times and technical discussion about energy began.

Mihajlovic stresses that Belgrade wants to talk about everything related to Kosovo. “We won’t talk just about relations in transmission nets and if there is electricity on Kosovo or not, we want to talk about natural resources”, says Energy Minister.

Zorana Mihajlovic points that south Serbian region is second place in Europe according to coal wealth and that is very big resource that two governments must discuss in the presence of international institutions and European Commission.

Source Serbia Energy Magazine