

One of the leading electricity producer in Europe interested in “Electric Power Industry” German company RWE, one of the leading electricity producer in Europe, is interested to buy the “Electric Power Industry of Serbia” (EPS).

- RWE will pay a few billion EUR for this Serbian company. If it comes to the EPS privatization, Serbia would ensure the energy security because our energy system would become part of the Europe energy system over RWE - said the source for “Kurir” daily. That Serbia would benefit from cooperation of EPS and RWE, also considers the Energy Minister Aleksandar Antic:

- The Government’s policy is to stabilize the EPS system by introducing a strategic partner who would be minor and would ensure full security of our energy system. That is the plan for the time ahead of us because by then EPS must be restructured and must become a limited company in compliance with the law. If such an interest exists, it would be a good signal for Serbia, given that what is the future of our energy system, which is the economy backbone.

Partnership with RWE would provide us new technologies and a whole set of things that we need to be able to say that we have a secure energy system - says Antic for Kurir and adds that, although it has been working on EPS restructuring, it requires more steps to lead EPS to a situation that may require a strategic partner.
