

Delegation of Goldman Saks, banking group that is in charge of investment banking, expressed interest for participation in construction of oil warehouse in Serbia at the meeting with Minister of Energy, Development and Environmental Protection, Prof Zorana Mihajlovic.

They stressed that the reason for meeting initiation is the book of priority projects from the Ministry because they have found systematized project at one place for the first time. GS representatives Miculka, Seder and Gallagher were interested in oil derivatives' reservoirs, the new Law for oil storage and participation in ownership of Copper mine Bor during the very complex conversation with Zorana Mihajlovic.

Minister Zorana Mihajlovic précised that edited edition of project book is in progress so there is some space for other projects except for existing conversations and other project that will be put into the list also. New meetings where concrete suggestions for future cooperation between Ministry and Goldman Saks suppose to be discussed are arranged at the end of meeting to be organized.

Source; MERZ/Serbia Energy