

Executive Director of “Electric Power Industry of Serbia” (EPS) Dragan Vlasisavljevic said that EPS is ready to participate in the electricity stock exchange SEPEX and the company had good experience working on other stock exchanges.

He stressed that EPS was preparing for participation in the balancing market failure, not only in Serbia but in the region, which is especially important for the operation of wind farms and other renewable energy sources. EPS is also considering investing in new production capacities which will enable him to successfully manage the business on the balancing market.

- EPS would like to expand their business in the region and we already operate on the Hungarian market - said Vlasisavljevic and added that the stock market provides more opportunities, but it is necessary to participate in several places in order to reduce business risk.

Executive Director of EPS stated and for several years, probably in 2017th, would be consider whether it was necessary to have a regulated electricity price in Serbia which was determined by AERS and at which were now supplying citizens and small consumers in Serbia. , transmits Serbia-energy.eu
