

WTS Energy has expanded its horizon in Europe by opening offices in Belgrade, Serbia. Frederik Rengers, CEO of WTS Energy says: "With investments by Gazprom and other companies in many exploration and production projects in and around Serbia, there is a huge potential for Serbia transforming into a massive energy hub for Central Europe. This will definitely create a huge demand for specialized oil and gas engineers and Serbia is one of the most promising countries for manpower supply business."

With their vast network, WTS Energy will be able to explore and tap into the talent pool of skilled petroleum engineers in Serbia and the neighboring countries like Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, Romania, Bulgaria, Slovakia and Serbia.

WTS Energy's global team of recruitment consultants are experienced in recruiting professionals from various engineering skill pools like geo-science, drilling, facilities engineering and construction, commissioning, operations and maintenance and also, project management.
