

Minister of Energy Zorana Mihajlović Milanović, spooked several times about upcoming changes in the energy sector of Serbia and its liberalization. In addition to reducing red tape, the Ministry will next year take charge of the processes of licensing and permitting in the renewable energy sector. As to consumption, the price of electricity will rise next year, but not before the social maps have been made. The changes will affect the operation of all heating plants in Serbia, but the state will provide support by stimulating them to use biomass, Minister Mihajlović Milanović announced.

Latest interview the Minister used to explain her opinion on power market liberalization and different situation with investors in RES projects.

Complete interview can be accessed here: LINK