Turkish company NeSa Energy signed a letter of intent for the development of a 130 million euro ($175.7 million) wind park project in Macedonia's south, the municipality of Bogdanci, said on Friday.

Turkish investors plans to build 44 wind turbines on the territory of Bogdanci, the municipality said in a statement on its web site.

The letter of intent, which was inked on Thursday, will lead to the signing of a final agreement which will detail the steps in the co-operation for the development of a wind park project.

Turkish renewable energy company NeSa Energy has already registered a representative office in Skopje.
